

Current family membership programs

Every person's service journey is different — some people may start theirs earlier while others start theirs later in life. Some people may have to end their service journey due to any number of life circumstances. Thankfully, there are multiple club programs that can help engage these potential new members regardless of where they are on their service journey.

Cub program

The Cub Program promoted clubs to be more family friendly. Created for children under 12 to teach children the importance of volunteering. The program is marketed to clubs with the following incentives: A Cub program can help your club grow by encouraging members to get their kids involved, opening the door for people who might not otherwise join because of family obligations. Bring families closer by giving an opportunity for families to spend time together while doing good for the community. Teach children the value of helping others by introducing children to the joys of volunteering and lead them toward a future of helping people in need. ## Leo club program

As the youngest members of Lions Clubs International, Leos embody the best qualities of our incredible organization. Leos are divided into two groups: Alpha Leo clubs for children and teens ages 12–18, and Omega Leo clubs for young adults ages 18–30. Together, Leos and Lions form a powerful partnership, sharing insights and learning from one another to serve successfully. ## Campus Lions clubs

A Campus Lions club can make an impact on both your local campus community and communities around the world while connecting students, faculty members and business leaders. There are many benefits to joining a Campus Lions club, including networking opportunities, in-person and online training and much more. Find out more information about Campus Lions clubs at lionsclubs.org/en/campus-clubs.

Specialty clubs

The Specialty Club program was designed to create clubs that unite members with a shared interest or passion, allowing them to connect with one another on a deeper level. For example, they may share a hobby, profession, culture, common cause, or life experience. This is especially enticing for families who want to join a Lions club centered around family interests. ## Virtual clubs

Many families in today's world are busy and are not able to attend in-person meetings. Virtual and hybrid clubs offer families the opportunity to join meetings online via phone or computer and attend in person when they can.
