New Voices Symposium Program

As the emphasis on promoting membership diversity and inclusion in Lions International continues, it is important for clubs to identify relevant service opportunities that will spark the interest of people of all ages and backgrounds. An excellent avenue for pinpointing these needs is to hold a New Voices Symposium. The underlying goal of a symposium is to promote gender parity and diversity, while seeking to increase the number of women, young adults, and other underrepresented populations in our organization.

A symposium is a gathering at which there is a free interchange of ideas, or a formal meeting at which several experts deliver short addresses on a topic or related topics for an identified purpose. The purpose of a New Voices Symposium is four-fold:

- 1. Identify new community projects that are of interest to diverse groups of people.
- 2. Identify potential members.
- 3. Promote Lions clubs within the community.
- 4. Charter a new club/club branch to develop the new community project that has been identified.

Holding a New Voices Symposium in your area requires careful preparation, but the time invested in a well planned and executed event will reap many benefits for Lions clubs and the community.

Planning your Event

Select a Theme

The first step in planning a successful New Voices Symposium is to choose a theme for the event. The theme will set the tone for the symposium, give a direction for all your planning efforts and impact the eventual outcome.

Consider the following questions when determining your theme:

- Will you keep the topic broad, such as "meeting community needs?"
- Do you want to focus on a particular group, such as "meeting our children's needs?"
- Would you prefer to focus on an area, such as "meeting pressing health care needs?"

Quick Tip

A broader subject will keep the possibilities open for a variety of service projects. However, it may be harder to keep the symposium focused and pinpoint service opportunities with a broader topic area. On the other hand, focusing too narrowly may overlook pressing needs and opportunities for service projects. Keep these thoughts in mind when planning your topic(s).

Brainstorm these ideas with interested Lions. Focus on ideas that will help meet the symposium goals. Once you have a list of these ideas, narrow it down by discussing the merits of each one. By the end of this step, you should have a short list of viable themes. (An alternative method to narrow down the list is to assign a number from 1-5 for each idea – "5" being a great theme idea and "1" being an idea that is not viable. The ideas that receive top scores by a majority of the group make it on the short list of theme choices).

From this list, choose the theme that will best help meet your symposium goals. You should then create a snappy title from your theme that succinctly states the idea and can be used for promotional materials. (For example, "Building a better Bedford" sponsored by the Bedford Breakfast Lions Club and the Bedford Chamber of Commerce).

Quick Tip

- Productive brainstorming sessions follow some basic guidelines to ensure their success:
 - Have a large pad of paper and a marker, a dry erase board or chalkboard to write down ideas so that they are visible to all participants.
 - Set a time limit for the session 30 minutes generally works well.
 - Write down EVERY idea that is mentioned don't think anything through or censor any ideas at this point.
 - Do not allow anyone to criticize an idea that could stifle participation, and even the most outlandish idea may lead to the one idea that eventually is perfect.
 - Have some fun, mindless activities available to keep participants' hands busy. Items like markers and paper for doodling or children's plastic building blocks can help busy the hands and open the right side of the brain for creative thinking.

Secure a Partner

After determining a theme, the next step is to identify one or more community partners for the event. Joining forces with other groups in your area lends credibility to the event, fresh perspectives and information to help identify crucial needs, as well as provide an additional source of resources and funding.

Ideas for partner groups include:

- Chamber of Commerce
- Red Cross
- Junior Women's Clubs
- Big Brother/Big Sisters
- United Way
- Girl Scouts
- Boy Scouts
- Association of University Women
- Association of Trial Lawyers
- Parent-Teacher Organization
- Nurses and Physician's Associations
- Junior League
- Community-based non-profit organizations

Quick Tip

Consider holding another brainstorming session to create a list of potential sponsors/participants. Visit your community's website, look in phone directories and in the community groups section of your local newspaper to help spark ideas.

Once a partner has been identified, form a symposium planning committee composed of individuals from both groups.

Set a Date

In order to plan and execute an effective, well publicized event, it is suggested that you allow at least three to four months to make appropriate arrangements. When discussing dates, take into consideration other scheduled community events and holidays. At this stage, it is a good idea to determine a target date and an alternate, to give more options for site selection.

Find a Location

There are several factors to keep in mind when selecting a facility for your symposium:

- Convenient location
- Ample parking
- Large enough seating area to comfortably accommodate participants
- Handicap access
- Food/beverage service or kitchen
- Ability to support audio-visual presentations
- Reasonable rental fee

Some ideas for locations to consider include:

- Lions halls
- Community or park district halls
- Library conference facilities
- Hotel conference facilities
- School auditoriums or gymnasiums
- Church halls
- Public service buildings

Many locations will offer reduced-fee services for non-profit organizations. Your partner organization may also have access to an appropriate facility. When determining the cost-effectiveness of locations, keep in mind that while a facility that is equipped with needed audio-visual components and has easy access to food and beverage services might initially be more expensive, in the end you might save both time and money by paying for the convenience of having everything available on site. Create a cost comparison of available facilities to see what is most feasible as well as time and cost effective for your event.

Apply for Funding

After the major logistics have been determined, you may apply for funding from Lions International. The maximum of US$2,000 is available per district, with a maximum grant of US$2,000 per symposium. The program allows for financial assistance of up to US$8,000 per constitutional area, per fiscal year. The funds are available on a first-come, first-served basis. A district or multiple district that received funding the previous year will be considered after November 1st to give other areas an opportunity. Applications for consideration must be submitted no later than 30 days prior to the symposium.

To apply for funding, you must complete the application form on page 17, supply a proposed budget form located on page 18, a preliminary agenda, information about your partner organization(s) and signature of the district governor for district symposiums and council chairperson for multiple district symposiums. The application for funds will be reviewed and a response given within 30 business days after it is received by the staff at Lions International. The New Voices Symposium Application, budget and agenda may be emailed to newvoices@lionsclubs.org as indicated on the form.

Approved funds will be reimbursed after the event, contingent upon District and Club Administration staff receiving the appropriate documentation as required by the General Reimbursement Policy on page 22. Use the Reporting/Reimbursement Form included in this guide to apply for reimbursement on page 19 and the Standard Expense Form. The Post Event Action Plan must also be included.

Plan the Presentation

A symposium can take several forms. It can be an informal, free exchange of ideas, a more formal, presentation based event or a combination of the two. The format chosen will depend upon the time available for the event, the size of the event, the theme, as well as the planning committee members' preference.

Each alternative will require experienced people to help lead the presentation. Examples include:

- Informal idea exchange: moderator, small group leaders
- Formal presentation: moderator, speakers
- Combination of formal presentation/idea exchange: moderator, speakers and small group leaders

Giving symposium participants the opportunity to actively contribute during the event can help them feel more connected to the topic and more inclined to join in the community project planned as a result of the symposium. Even if your event is more formal, be sure to build in some interactive time through questions and answer periods, networking opportunities during breaks or a large group discussion session.

Quick Tip

In the back of this publication are two sample schedules pages 15 and 16 to help in planning your symposium presentation. They can be customized to fit your event format, time allotted and other considerations.

Invite Speakers

Upon determining a format for the symposium, invite the appropriate speakers to participate. You will want to have a representative from Lions and your partner organization (if applicable) to welcome the group, as well as a moderator. If your symposium will include an opportunity for participants to brainstorm and share ideas, you will want a number of small group leaders to help facilitate the discussion.

For a more formal, speech orientated event, identify local experts to give participants an overview of the symposium topic(s). Appropriate speakers include the leaders of your participating organizations, local officials, college or university faculty, etc. Look for people who are knowledgeable in the topic area, are experienced speakers and are interested in helping strengthen your community.

Quick Tip

Prominent speakers not only add credibility to your event, they also provide a good "hook" for publicizing the symposium to the media.

Once you've secured the speakers, confirm their participation in writing. Be sure to include all the details of the event, as well as some background information on Lions International, your club and your partner organization(s).

Include Additional Elements

Several supplementary elements can be added to the event to introduce Lions clubs to the participants, as well as give participants the opportunity to showcase their objectives, goods or services. Consider the following ideas:

Hold a Community Showcase: Have tables set up around the perimeter of the room or in the corridor.
 These tables can be rented to groups for a nominal fee (perhaps US$25 per table) and used to promote their organizations. Participants can visit the tables before or after the symposium and during breaks.

Quick Tip

- ➤ Be sure to include a table for Lions clubs! Have literature available regarding your club's projects, general information brochures and invitations/applications for membership. Excellent resources include:
 - Family Membership Webpage
 - Lions Make a Difference (ME-40) All-purpose information publication
 - Charter Member Application (TK-188) if applicable
 - Membership Application (ME-6B)

- Create a program for the event: Participants can include information regarding their organizations for a nominal fee in the back of the program.
- Include a Lions International presentation during the event. This can be brief, and included during the welcoming remarks. Include information about why Lions are sponsoring the symposium and what projects local Lions clubs actively pursue.
- Identify a community project. At the end of the symposium, a new community project should be identified. Use the project as a means to start a new club or club branch.

Quick Tip

A complimentary showcase table or advertising in the event program may be used as bartering tool for getting free or reduced-fee services for the event. Printers, caterers, media outlets, etc. can be approached for this opportunity.

Invite Participants

While you may identify one co-sponsor for the event, be sure to invite members from other groups to participate. You want to have a wide cross-section of groups represented to add to the free exchange of ideas during the symposium. Refer to your list of potential partner organizations to begin an invitation list.

Send written invitations to the groups you would like to participate in the symposium. Follow up the written invitation with a phone call to the organization's leader to personally invite members to join the symposium and explain its objectives.

Invitations should include the symposium's title, sponsoring organizations, time, date, place, a brief description of the event and a contact name, number and email address for more information or responses (if you would like to gauge how many people may attend).

Quick Tip

Encourage invitees to bring a friend!

Invitations should be sent out approximately one month before the event.

Quick Tip

Keep in mind that less than one-third of the participants should be Lions to focus on perspective members and alleviate costs.

Publicize the Event

In addition to personal invitations to key community groups, you should publicize the event to the general public. Work with the district public relations chairperson to develop a communications plan for the event.

Some ideas for publicizing your symposium include:

- Create a flyer that can be posted in area businesses. Be sure to prominently display the sponsoring Lion's district and/or club(s) name and the Lions logo.
- Send a calendar listing to the community calendar editor of newspapers, radio and television stations. A sample calendar listing is included on page 15.
- Post information regarding the symposium on the sponsoring Lions club(s) and district websites. Ask your partner to include the information on their website or include a link to your site.
- Research the cost of a print ad in a local newspaper. Newspapers often reduce advertising fees for non-profit groups. This should be done prior to submitting the funding application.
- Research the cost of purchasing advertising spots on local radio stations. As with newspapers, they offer a deal to non-profit groups. This should be done prior to submitting the funding application.
- Invite the media to cover the event by sending a news release to local newspapers, radio and television stations. A sample release is available on page 16.
- Contact local businesses with marquees or electronic bulletin boards and request that they post information regarding the symposium.

- Participate in other community events prior to the symposium and use the opportunity to distribute information about the event.
- Be sure to publicize the event internally. Communicate to other Lions throughout your district via newsletters, website, etc.

Finalize Details

The most important item to remember when planning a successful event is to confirm all arrangements in writing. Be sure to double check dates, times, etc. on all written correspondence.

Included in this guide is a handy checklist/timeline to assist with planning your event. These are available on pages 11 to 13.

Quick Tip

Prepare an "emergency kit" filled with cellophane, masking tape, scissors, markers, pens, stapler, extension cord, etc. to take to the event location for set up. Having these items on hand will save precious time during set up.

Keep it simple when determining food and beverage needs for the event. If you have an all day event, lunch can be "on your own" for participants. Have fresh water available throughout the day. If the group size isn't prohibited, you might consider offering cookies or another snack for breaks and having coffee and tea service.

Quick Tip

Ask a local business to sponsor the food and beverage service at the event in exchange for including their name in promotional materials and on-site at the event. Many businesses would be honored to be involved in an important community event such as the symposium.

For more information, questions or to order resources, contact the District and Club Administration Division staff by email newvoices@lionsclubs.org or by phone (630) 468-6828.

Turn Ideas into Action...and New Members

On the day of the symposium, take advantage of the enthusiasm and interest of participants by strongly encouraging involvement in Lions clubs and the new community effort that will be planned and launched as a result of the event. Participants have already shown that they have a vested interest in the topic – don't miss the opportunity to harness their interest and involve them further. Have a quantity of the appropriate membership materials available onsite so that they may be invited on the spot.

Some ideas for inviting new members during the event include:

- Charter a new club or create a branch of an existing club that is charged with specifically addressing the projects suggested by the symposium.
- Ask Lions present to invite attendees to become a Lions club member. The symposium will give participants a good look at Lions in action make the most of this opportunity!
- Promote club membership at the Lions club booths at the community showcase. Create a display that specifically lists the benefits of club membership.
- Have the symposium moderator discuss Lions club membership and the opportunity to apply to become a member.
- Form a committee to contact people who gave a "maybe" or "not now" answer when asked about membership the day of the event.
- Ask every new recruit from the symposium to give you the name of at least three other people they feel would be interested in working on the project by becoming a Lions club member. Follow up with those people!

Please note: A membership growth component is an essential part of your symposium planning. It is required in order to qualify for funding from Lions Clubs International.

Use the form included in this guide to help create an action plan (page 20) to help realize your goals and plan the new community initiative. Begin planning promptly to capitalize on the goodwill and enthusiasm generated at the symposium – and to demonstrate to community members that Lions clubs are proactive.

In addition, send a follow-up news release citing the results of the symposium to local media, and send personal thank you notes to all the speakers.

Quick Tip

A sign-in registration sheet is an excellent way to obtain a complete list of all participants and their contact information for use after the symposium.

Lions International does not provide medical insurance coverage to its members whether or not on Lions business. Therefore, when traveling on personal or Lions International business, it would be wise to make sure you have sufficient medical insurance coverage. Many individual group medical insurance plans do not cover the insured outside their city, state, province, or country. This is especially true of the United States Medicare insurance, which is effective in the United States only, and is probably true in many government-sponsored and individual medical plans.

This is a personal matter, which varies from individual to individual, so please be sure to examine your own situation and that of family members and friends carefully.
